INTRODUCTION

The annual Statements of Community District Needs (CD Needs Statements) and Community Board Budget Requests (Budget Requests) are Charter mandates that form an integral part of the City's budget process. Together, they are intended to support communities in their ongoing consultations with city agencies, elected officials and other key stakeholders and influence more informed decision making on a broad range of local planning and budget priorities. This report also provides a valuable public resource for neighborhood planning and research purposes, and may be used by a variety of audiences seeking information about New York City's diverse communities.

This report is broadly structured as follows:

1. Overarching Community District Needs

Sections 1 – 4 provide an overview of the community district and the top three pressing issues affecting this district overall as identified by the community board. Any narrative provided by the board supporting their selection of their top three pressing issues is included.

2. Policy Area-Specific District Needs

Section 5 is organized by seven distinct policy areas aligned with the service and program areas of city agencies. For each policy area, community boards selected the most important issue for their districts and could provide a supporting narrative. The policy area section also includes any agency-specific needs and a list of relevant budget requests submitted by the community board. If the community board submitted additional information outside of a specific policy area, it may be found in Section 6.

3. Community Board Budget Requests

The final section includes the two types of budget requests submitted to the City for the FY24 budget cycle; one list for capital and another for expense budget requests. For each budget request, community boards were able to provide a priority number, explanation, location, and supporters. Statement on Data Accuracy

Under Title 13 of the U.S. Code, the Census Bureau is legally bound to protect the privacy of individuals participating in the decennial census. To adhere to the law and to avoid the disclosure of information about individual respondents, the Census Bureau has historically applied a host of techniques, such as top- and bottom-coding, imputation, table- and cell-suppression, and data swapping. The Census Bureau is employing a new technique with the 2020 Census, referred to as the Disclosure Avoidance System (DAS), based on differential privacy. With this approach, the Census Bureau “infuses noise” systematically across census data and sets a quantified disclosure risk, referred to as the Privacy Loss Budget (PLB).

While the new DAS approach may diminish the risk of disclosure concerns, it comes at a cost to data accuracy. Consequently, 2020 Census data users should be aware that all sub-state counts, except for housing units (which are unaffected by the DAS), may be adjusted to protect the privacy of Census participants and may be subject to reduced accuracy. Because DAS noise infusion is randomized, it is impossible for data users to know the degree to which any individual statistic is altered. However, it is possible to say that in general the relative size of errors decreases as counts increase. Consequently, data users should have greater confidence in the accuracy of the data as counts get larger. Further, an evaluation of a Privacy-Protected Microdata File (PPMF), treated with a Disclosure Avoidance System like the one applied to 2020 redistricting data, showed that counts of 300 or more rarely have sizable errors (error beyond +/- 10% of the count). Therefore, while data users need to be cognizant of data accuracy limitations, they should have confidence in conclusions based on sizable counts, which are relatively unaffected by the Census Bureau’s latest disclosure avoidance method.

3. OVERVIEW OF COMMUNITY DISTRICT

Brooklyn's Community Board 3 is home to the neighborhood of Bedford-Stuyvesant. The community district is in the northern section of central Brooklyn and bounded by Flushing Avenue and Broadway on the north, Saratoga Avenue on the east, Atlantic Avenue on the south, and Classon Avenue on the west. It borders community boards 1, 2, 4, 8, and 16.

A 2021 piece in Untapped New York identified Bedford-Stuyvesant as a neighborhood with "the largest collection of untouched and intact Victorian buildings in the U.S., with hundreds of historic brownstones filling the neighborhood's streets."

For nearly 100 years, it "has been a cultural center for the African American community in New York (City)." Today's Bedford-Stuyvesant is an outgrowth the free Black community of Weeksville established three decades before the end of the Civil War. The Bedford and Stuyvesant Heights sections were developed with many row houses for families in the second half of the nineteenth century. By the 1930s, the combined neighborhood known as Bedford- Stuyvesant had become the city's second largest Black community.

During the mid-20th century, as white immigrant families left central Brooklyn for eastern Queens and Long Island, many Blacks migrating from the American South and others emigrating from the Caribbean found community in the neighborhood. Despite redlining, disinvestment, poverty, and other types of discrimination faced by residents, Bedford-Stuyvesant quickly became a center for Black business, cultural expression and production, homeownership, innovation, activism, and political power.

According to the most recent data published by the Department of City Planning, in 2010 Bedford-Stuyvesant had a population of roughly 153,000 residents (a 6.3% over the previous decade), nearly two-thirds of whom were Black. By 2022, the district's population had grown by 14.4% to about 175,000 residents but the Black share of the population had fallen to 41.2%. The decline represents a net loss of more than 22,000 Black residents while the overall population, grew by nearly 22,000.

The demographic shift is the result of dramatic gentrification. A 2018 report by the New York State Comptroller found that: "Most of the growth has been driven by an influx of new residents, which has changed the neighborhood's composition. "New residents are attracted to the neighborhood's brownstones, relatively low housing costs and proximity to Manhattan. With a sharp decrease in crime and an increase in restaurants, cafés, bars, retail shops and live entertainment, Bedford-Stuyvesant is becoming a popular place to live and work.

"Many of the new residents are immigrants, white, or young, and are likely to have higher incomes than long-term residents. Their arrival has put pressure on housing costs, making it increasingly less affordable for long-term residents, especially seniors, to remain in the neighborhood." The neighborhood's demographic shift has placed in sharp contrast the challenges we face in Bedford-Stuyvesant. The Comptroller's report also revealed stark, and widening, disparities in median household income between new and long-term residents, with new residents' median household income (roughly $60,000) nearly double that of their neighbors.

Given the community's shifting demographics this disparity is racialized and contributes to neighborhood tensions. If this trend goes unaddressed, racialized income stratification will become even more entrenched. According to NYU's Furman Center, 80% of the district's residents are renters and about 53% are rent burdened – devoting more than 30% of their income to rent. Over a quarter of households dedicate more than 50% of their income to rent. With more than 20,000 NYCHA residents – almost exclusively Black and Latino – across its 15 developments and 8,240 units, Bedford-Stuyvesant has more NYCHA residents than any other community district in Brooklyn.

NYC Health Department reports that residents of Bedford-Stuyvesant suffer from chronic health problems at rate significantly above the city's average. The neighborhood ranks in top ten for rates of smoking, diabetes, new HIV diagnoses, obesity, stroke, mental health, alcohol hospitalizations and adult hospitalizations for asthma. As we emerge from the COVID-19 crisis, Bedford-Stuyvesant is still dealing with impacts of the pandemic and its aftereffects.

The COVID-19 pandemic period exemplified the neighborhood's resiliency but also laid bear some of the district's deepest needs. We need more robust mental health supports for residents of all ages, comprehensive domestic violence prevention, agile and easily accessible services for older adults, proven program and activities designed to engage and connect with youth, more resources for violence reduction and conflict resolution, and other services that seek to strengthen the social fabric of the community.

Jobs & Business Support: The jobs recovery in Bedford-Stuyvesant has been uneven. Many residents work for small businesses that were hard hit and struggled to gain access to aid programs. The pandemic amplified existing structural impediments. We need sustained investment and focus to generate jobs and help our local small businesses thrive.

Open Space: Less than 3% of the land in Bedford-Stuyvesant is open or recreational space, placing it in the bottom 10 citywide and the second lowest in Brooklyn. Not only is open space vital for exercise, but it's also important for mental health. As development continues to transform parts of the neighborhood it's critical that efforts to create more public available open spaces and improvements to existing spaces is prioritized.

Broadband and Wi-Fi: The pandemic made clear the lack of technological infrastructure that exists Bedford-Stuyvesant. Though some progress has been made in the intervening years (such as free access at NYCHA developments and affordability programs), Bedford-Stuyvesant still needs greater investment in connectivity such as broadband and Wi-Fi infrastructure. These investments help ensured that residents can compete and participate in the changing economy.

CONCLUSION Though Bedford-Stuyvesant is acknowledged as a leading incubator for the future without significant investment and programs to address the neighborhood's challenges, many disparities will deepen. They will further marginalize our neighborhood's most vulnerable – poor, Black, and Latino, long-term residents, living in public or low-income housing. Community Board 3 is committed to working with elected officials, government agencies, nonprofits, academia, the business community, civic leaders and groups, and others interested in addressing persistent and emergent issues and building a stronger, more resilient Bedford-Stuyvesant.

The three most pressing issues facing this Community Board are:

Affordable Housing

Stable housing that one can afford is a core social determinant of health. Studies show that affordability impacts housing stability for adults and children and helps them address challenges and pursue goals. Household with affordable rents generally have improved outcomes in employment, health, and education. The most recent data shows that 53.6% of renters in Bedford-Stuyvesant are rent burdened, paying more than 30% of the income toward rent. 27.8% are severely rent burdened allocated at least 50% of their income to rent. Rent burdened tenants are the most housing insecure and at high risk of homelessness if they experience job loss. With the median asking rent $2,720 per month for new residents, housing costs are becoming less affordable for both low- and middle-income residents. Most families would need a minimum household income of $108,800 qualify to rent apartments at the median asking rent.

Between 2010 and 2020, nearly 6,000 new units came created in Bedford-Stuyvesant, 83% were market rate. In 2023, the median income for renters was $67,690; an affordable rent rate would less than $1,700.

Bedford-Stuyvesant needs a variety of affordable housing options, including rents from extremely low income through middle income as well as home-ownership opportunities, that will enable individuals and families to stable lives.

Parks & Open Space

The dearth of open and green space has emerged as a top community concern. Less than 3% of the land in Bedford-Stuyvesant is open or recreational space, placing it in the bottom 10 community districts citywide and the second lowest in Brooklyn. Yet the neighborhood's population has surged by nearly 20,000 in the past ten years. Resources are strained. Space is limited. As generational demographic shift and increase, residents are using outdoor spaces throughout all seasons and that space does not necessarily equate to being a park or playground. Plazas and squares would be a welcome addition to the community, allowing for safe social congregation or alternative workspaces as more individuals work remotely.

Trash removal & cleanliness

Bedford-Stuyvesant's population has surged more than 14% since 2010 and that influx of new resident has impacted trash removal and street cleanliness. Though, street cleanliness has been mostly stable over the past couple of years, according to the Mayor's SCORECARD, CB3 averages remain worse than the borough and city-wide averages. This is unacceptable and is evidence of a systematic failing that residents deal with daily. The district needs a comprehensive approach to trash, waste, and cleanliness including regular collection, effective street sweeping, and enforcement of commercial waste regulations. We also need an investment in education and outreach that promotes diversion practices and waste reduction.

4. TOP THREE PRESSING ISSUES OVERALL

Brooklyn Community Board 3

The three most pressing issues facing this Community Board are:

Affordable Housing

Stable housing that one can afford is a core social determinant of health. Studies show that affordability impacts housing stability for adults and children and helps them address challenges and pursue goals. Household with affordable rents generally have improved outcomes in employment, health, and education. The most recent data shows that 54.9% of renters in Bedford-Stuyvesant are rent burdened, paying more than 30% of the income toward rent. 27.5% are severely rent burdened allocated at least 50% of their income to rent. Rent burdened tenants are the most housing insecure and at high risk of homelessness if they experience job loss. With the median asking rent $2,500 per month for two-bedroom apartment, housing costs are becoming less affordable for both low- and middle-income residents. Most families would need a minimum annual income of $100,000 qualify to rent apartments at the median asking rent. The median rent for renters was $46,600; an affordable rent rate would be $1,165. Bedford-Stuyvesant needs a variety of affordable housing options, including rents from extremely low income through middle income as well as home-ownership opportunities, that will enable individuals and families to stable lives.

Parks and open space

The dearth of open and green space has emerged as a top community concern particularly during this pandemic era. Less than 3% of the land in Bedford-Stuyvesant is open or recreational space, placing it in the bottom 10 citywide and the second lowest in Brooklyn. Yet the neighborhood's population has surged by nearly 20,000 in the past ten years. Resources are strained. Space is limited. As generational demographic shift and increase, residents are using outdoor spaces throughout all seasons and that space does not necessarily equate to being a park or playground. Plazas and squares would be a welcome addition to the community, allowing for safe social congregation or alternative work spaces as more individuals work remotely.

Trash removal and cleanliness

Bedford-Stuyvesant's population has surged more than 14% since 2010 and that influx of new resident has impacted trash removal and street cleanliness. Though, street cleanliness has improved in the past year according to the Mayor's SCORECARD CB3 still lags behind the borough and city wide averages. This is unacceptable and is evidence of a systematic failing that residents have to deal with on a daily basis. Cuts to the Sanitation Department in previously fiscal years have significantly impacted neighborhood cleanliness. The pandemic cessation of the organics program, which has never been expanded to Community Board 3, has not equipped residents with tools and practices that help reduce waste. The district needs a comprehensive approach to trash, waste, and cleanliness including regular collection, effective street sweeping, and enforcement of commercial waste regulations. We also need an investment in education and outreach that promotes diversion practices and waste reduction including a robust organics program.

5. SUMMARY OF COMMUNITY DISTRICT NEEDS AND BUDGET REQUESTS

HEALTHCARE AND HUMAN SERVICES

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Healthcare and Human Services

Services for low-income and vulnerable New Yorkers

Services for low-income and vulnerable residents of Bedford-Stuyvesant were insufficient prior to the pandemic. Whether it is a lower wage essential worker, families living in shelter, those living in crowded homes, the unemployed and underemployed, and those that with chronic illness, the pandemic -- and its impacts like inflation -- has been most destabilizing for them and requires a surge in services (like food programs and other supports) that help them maintain sustenance.

YOUTH, EDUCATION AND CHILD WELFARE

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Youth, Education and Child Welfare

Youth workforce development and summer youth employment

Workforce opportunities for youth is critically needed in Bedford-Stuyvesant. While SYEP offers young people to chance to earn an income as they explore work and career opportunities, year-round opportunities would strengthen engagement with young people. Studies show that meaningfully engage youth with work increases their civic engagement and introduces them to new fields while decreasing the likelihood a young person to participate in petty crime. Work fosters self-confidence, builds skills, and provides necessary economic support for families.

Community District Needs Related to Youth, Education and Child Welfare

Needs for Youth Education

Recent data from first reading and math scores since the start of the pandemic reveal sharp declines for children nationwide. The impact in Bedford-Stuyvesant is more acute because scores in the neighborhood lagged behind national scores prior to the pandemic. Now they are testing even worse. Investments in individualized and group tutoring in the core subject areas are vital to improving student outcomes.

PUBLIC SAFETY AND EMERGENCY SERVICES

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Public Safety and Emergency Services

Crime prevention programs

Property crimes, like package theft and car break-ins, as well as violent gun crimes (usually involving gang activities) have increased in the time since the pandemic shutdown. Increased deliveries has seen an upsurge in package theft. A program to get delivery services to improve protocols on delivery will reduce the number of unattended packages on stoops and in doorways. Greater attention to the gun trade and how they move on the black market would help to reduce gun violence. Investment in violence prevention efforts like cure violence will engage those most prone to involvement.

Community District Needs Related to Public Safety and Emergency Services

Needs for Public Safety

Public safety solutions must be robust and comprehensive. We are not safer with more arrests. Safety means using the full toolkit of resources that minimize and eliminate violence. We need more investment in violence intervention and prevention work, anti-bullying, out-of-school-time programs focused on youth development, wide access to mental health supports, modern and well-maintained recreational facilities. Evidence shows that all of efforts reduce gang activity and increase pathways for community safety and wellness.

CORE INFRASTRUCTURE, CITY SERVICES AND RESILIENCY

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Core Infrastructure, City Services and Resiliency

Cleanliness/trash collection

Dumping in vacant lots and buildings, parks, in front of shuttered businesses, and at corner litter baskets is a rising problem throughout the community district. The dumping typically occurs late nights or in the early hours of the morning. It contributes to dirty sidewalks and rubbish around the community. The district's low sanitation cleanliness scores confirm the neighborhood's struggles and highlight a need for more enforcement. Without adequate enforcement covering multiple shifts the problem will persist.

Community District Needs Related to Core Infrastructure, City Services and Resiliency

Needs for Sanitation Services

Illegal dumping is a major community concern. From parks to MTA stations and bus stops, to corner baskets, dumpers abuse the neighborhood and beset their waste on the whole community. We need greater enforcement against violators to change behaviors around dumping in Bedford-Stuyvesant.

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Housing, Economic Development and Land Use

Affordable housing creation

The development of several parcels of land in the southeastern quadrant of Bedford-Stuyvesant, particularly on Fulton Street and Saratoga Avenue is crucial to the district, and we know that there are ongoing discussions regarding those parcels of land with HPD. The development of this land is an opportunity to create senior and affordable housing for the working people of Bedford Stuyvesant who are having a hard time finding affordable housing to raise their families in. A Community facility, startup incubator & general office space, a full service bank and a FRESH market can also be located within the new development. This development is an opportunity to incorporate sustainable features and practices in a mixed-use development project within Bedford Stuyvesant. A study to assess the need and impact of active manufacturing in northern sections of Bedford-Stuyvesant including clear opportunities to either the attraction of industrial manufacturing and/or the protection of areas for manufacturing should be identified. Additionally the study should include an assessment for the attraction of a green industry cluster appropriate and contextual to the Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood.

Community District Needs Related to Housing, Economic Development and Land Use

Needs for Economic Development

Community Board 3 encompasses a vast area with diverse needs. In the past decade, Bedford-Stuyvesant has seen a significant uptick in start-up businesses and businesses moving to the area, yet many are forced to shutter due to high commercial rents. We know that a thriving community is one where small business can grow and be sustained. We need particular attention to small business development along our secondary commercial corridors, which serves portions resident without easy access to Fulton Street. In addition, affordable homeownership remains a major obstacle in Bedford Stuyvesant. Studies show that the homeownership is the hallmark of a stable community. Rising home costs is making homeownership less achievable for many residents each day. Many long-time Bedford Stuyvesant residents find themselves unable to afford or maintain their homes, leaving them susceptible to foreclosure or unethical investors. These efforts disrupt the community's cohesion.

TRANSPORTATION AND MOBILITY

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Transportation and Mobility

Traffic safety and enforcement (cars, scooters, ebikes, etc.)

Traffic enforcement is lack throughout the community, creating more dangerous roadways for all users - pedestrians, cyclists, bus operators, and other uses. Streets are jammed with traffic and motorists often double park or blocking bus stops and fire hydrants. We need better enforcement improve safety for all.

Community District Needs Related to Transportation and Mobility

Needs for Traffic and Transportation Infrastructure

The Broadway corridor is in poor condition and needs significant upgrades. The roadway is dilapidated and the street design is unsafe. Our district also have significant congestion issues on Fulton Street, Myrtle Avenue, Bedford Avenue, and Atlantic Avenue. Additionally there are deep issues at the Classon Avenue on-ramp to the BQE and Tompkins Avenue during the afternoon rush.

Needs for Transit Services

As the City diversifies transit options, its critical the community-level engagement and participation are involved at every level. Our streets landscape is changing but those changes should include input, feedback, and recommendations from the widest swath of users. Data supporting changes, at the community board level, should be prioritized and shared with constituents.

PARKS, CULTURAL AND OTHER COMMUNITY FACILITIES

Brooklyn Community Board 3

Most Important Issue Related to Parks, Cultural and Other Community Facilities

Quality of parks and park facilities

As a community we continue to advocate for the better parks and playgrounds. Parks have always assisted our community in child development, community engagement through family events, physical activities, and a resource for our educators and their students. There are several assets in our district that require capital funding and would make significant impact on the quality of the parks. Spaces are being used for a variety of activities as more and more people are using the outdoors as extension of their homes. There are neighborhood green spaces which contend with the challenge of their surroundings, such as NYCHA playgrounds. These spaces present unique opportunities and challenges; although the community would benefit from programming such as 'Parks without Borders' it leaves residents vulnerable even if that program encourages social engagement. Our parks also need to be better equipped to deal with the changing climate. The recent extreme weather magnified the need in Bedford-Stuyvesant for more green infrastructure to go along with improved catch basin and drainage systems, There are still has several asphalt covered play yards and street extensions where greenery can be integrated.

Community District Needs Related to Parks, Cultural and Other Community Facilities

Needs for Cultural Services

Cultural assets within the community need to be supported and maintained. Institutions like the Magnolia Tree Earth Center should be part of the city's cultural institutions group so that it could have access to sustainable funding streams. Bedford-Stuyvesant is a cultural center and culture is a driver for the local economy. A neighborhood cultural plan would help identify gaps in resources, areas of saturation, and ways to leverage cultural capital for greater good.

Needs for Community Boards

The community board need greater investment to meet the breadth of community needs. Our office need access and training in hardware and software resources that aid in informaiton sharing with diverse constituences. The board needs access to facilities that can host meetings in that prioritize public health and have audio-visual capacity that allow for hybrid meetings.

Provide more housing for medium income households	1 / 30 HPD	Provide more housing for medium income households	The pace and breadth of new affordable housing does not meet the demand resulting in widespread displacement and it is significantly impacting neighborhood demographics. Since 2010, the population of CB3 has grown by more than 14% but the Black population in CB3 has dropped by over 22,000 people (or 22.4%). The Board urges the agency to continue, and quickly expand, programs like the Bedford-Stuyvesant Housing Initiative as well as develop new initiatives that will bring new units on line at twice the current rate.
